New UCSF Research and Academic Building at ZSFG [1]

UC San Francisco (UCSF) at Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital and Trauma Center [2] (ZSFG) is proposing to build a modern academic research building on the ZSFG campus along 23rd Street between Vermont and Utah Streets. The facility has a projected completion date of 2019.

More information about the proposed UCSF Research Building at Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital and Trauma Center here [3].

Partners in Research and Patient Care

Since 1864, Zuckerberg San Francisco General and the UCSF School of Medicine have worked in close collaboration to provide health care services for the people of San Francisco.

ZSFG is one of UCSF’s primary teaching hospitals, where medical residents train under UCSF faculty and City staff. Today, more than 2,000 UCSF physicians and staff from all four UCSF professional schools work side-by-side at the hospital with 3,500 employees of the San Francisco Department of Public Health.

UCSF at ZSFG offers the triple benefit of education, patient care and research. Each of these endeavors is world-class, evident in the high number of teaching awards, research grants and professional commendations showered upon the UCSF team at ZSFG. Best of all, the teaching, research and clinical care are not isolated, but work together providing real-time benefit to patients and state of the art opportunities for physicians and other providers.

Read more >> [4]

Read more >> [5]
Resources For UCSF at ZSFG Faculty and Staff [6]

Contact Us
UCSF Main Site

© 2016 The Regents of the University of California

Source URL: http://sfgh.ucsf.edu/ucsf-zuckerberg-san-francisco-general-vice-deans-office

Links: